CAREER PATHWAYS

Program Alignment with Labor Market Demand

In 2011, Harvard Graduate School of Education published Pathways to Prosperity, a ground-breaking report proving the necessity to integrate career pathways into education systems. The report incited national conversations in businesses, industry and education and became a call to action to better prepare the future workforce for success.

CAWD and NCWorks continue to respond to that call with NCWorks Certified Career Pathways, a key strategy to strengthen the workforce and increase the number of people with education and training beyond high school.

Pathways are an integrated, seamless system of education and workforce programs developed by local employers, workforce boards, and educators. Students and job seekers get help determining if and how the knowledge, skills, abilities, and interests they possess are transferable to new jobs. Pathways also help to identify skill gaps and required postsecondary education and training by industry and occupation.

We continue to release resources and bring industry and career counselors together to share information for better facilitation of career pathways. Consider joining us at a future career pathways event.

ON THE RIGHT PATH

CAWD is putting great effort into preparing people to work in industries with pronounced worker shortages. Two industries having the most trouble finding skilled labor and qualified candidates are construction and information technology (IT).

Exposing youth and young adults to these career fields is one way we are trying to affect these talent shortfalls. In addition, moving adult workers into these jobs, or increasing skill levels for them to advance, is a part of our every day, year-round work.

Pathways provide a map for entering a job at any level and articulates what additional skills and education are needed to progress. Once an off ramp is taken into any given occupation and work experience is increased, one can re-enter the pathway at the higher level and continue forward as the person sees fit.

Below is a summary of ongoing initiatives focused on construction and IT career pathways and current participant progress.

TechHire

105 participants have received IT training
13 placed in paid work experience
30 of IBM's current workers received advanced training

I.T Beginnings

7 youth graduated in the first cohort
5 moved on to TechHire
2nd cohort begins September 2018

YouthBuild

24 young adults are currently enrolled
18 are in construction training and education courses
13 have moved on to work experience with Habitat for Humanity

NCWorks

53 job seekers from Wake and Johnston received training along a career pathway
34 received on-the-job training within a pathway onsite with business
34 received industry recognized credentials
